IPE Casualty

I had just completed the third day of the IPE course and a participant came to me and said, "Thank you for this course; I feel so much better." I took that comment graciously and then she continued with the following explanation, "I have felt so guilty and have hated myself for the past year because I was not satisfied with my job, and through this course I have discovered why. I have been doing what I had spent four long, hard struggling years studying to do and have been miserable with the majority of my job duties. I processed many things but the most outstanding discovery was what it is I REALLY love and want to do. I hate searching through files and collecting data; but I love interviewing patients teaching and sharing information in public forums. I have now set a new career goal, developed a MAP and forgiven myself for feeling like I wasted those four years. As you helped me see, I was building a foundation upon which I can now start "construction"! Before this course my life was in "destruction". I feel renewed, alive, excited and motivated. I am looking forward to a whole new future. Thank You, Thank You, Thank You!"

What a success story and how gratifying to have a perfect program to help someone discover themselves. This was just one of many stories that have been told after an IPE course. Because of the experience and results of this course I am a "HAPPY"trainer, too. Thanks EDS, Inc.
